As for why the MC curve intersects both the AVC and AC curves at their minimums, the answer lies in these key formulas. If marginal cost is greater than average total cost then the ATC must be rising and if marginal cost is less than ATC, then average total cost must be falling. Figure it this way. If the production of an additional unit has a marginal cost greater than average cost, then the ...

The key to perfecting your fake laugh is getting the right sound and facial expression. Make a quick giggle instead of a slower or deeper laugh, since this will sound more realistic. Try to imitate how other people laugh. Laughing is often contagious, so you should find it easier to laugh when other people around you are laughing. You can also think of something else that's funny to help you ...
